In He Said, She Said, authors John and Mary Smith chronicle their journey to buy a dream home in France. From their initial decision to make the move to their final Free Download, John and Mary share every step of their adventure with wit, humor, and a healthy dose of self-deprecation.

Along the way, they encounter a cast of colorful characters, including a real estate agent who speaks only in French, a cantankerous neighbor who makes life difficult for them, and a friendly local who helps them to settle into their new life.

But He Said, She Said is more than just a funny story about buying a house. It's also a love story, a story about the challenges and rewards of living in a foreign country, and a story about the importance of following your dreams.

Whether you're a Francophile, a dreamer, or simply someone who loves a good laugh, you'll find something to love in He Said, She Said. So sit back, relax, and enjoy the ride.

Here's a Sneak Peek Inside the Book:

"We were sitting in our living room, watching the rain fall outside, when John turned to me and said, 'I think we should buy a house in France.'"

"I stared at him in disbelief. 'A house in France? Are you crazy?'"

"'I'm not crazy,' John said. 'I'm serious. I've been thinking about it for a long time, and I think it's the perfect time for us to make a move.'"

"I didn't know what to say. I had never considered living in France before. But the more John talked about it, the more I started to warm up to the idea."

"A few weeks later, we were on a plane to Paris. We had decided to take a vacation to France to see if we could find our dream home. We had no idea what to expect, but we were both excited for the adventure."

And so began John and Mary's journey to buy a dream home in France. Along the way, they would encounter many challenges, but they would also find laughter, love, and a new home that they would cherish for the rest of their lives.
