Luna's isolation was a constant companion, a bittersweet melody that haunted her every swim. Unlike other whales who traveled in pods, Luna was alone, an outcast in the underwater wilderness. Her mournful cries echoed through the watery expanse, a testament to her longing for connection.

But unbeknownst to Luna, her solitary existence was about to take an unexpected turn. In 1985, she crossed paths with a group of curious fishermen near Vancouver Island. Intrigued by her unusual behavior, they began to observe her closely, drawn to her individuality and gentle nature.

As the days turned into weeks, a bond began to form between Luna and her human companions. They discovered that she was orphaned at a young age, a tragedy that had left her vulnerable and alone. Moved by her plight, the fishermen decided to help, offering her companionship and protection.

Luna's story captivated the hearts of people around the world. Her tale of isolation and resilience resonated with those yearning for belonging. She became a symbol of hope, a reminder that even in the face of adversity, connections can be found.

In his captivating book, Luna: The Lonely Whale, renowned artist and writer Michael Dante DiMartino has brought Luna's extraordinary journey to life. With vivid prose and stunning illustrations, DiMartino transports readers into Luna's world, sharing her struggles, triumphs, and the transformative power of human kindness.
